The Curious George Cottage in Waterville Valley

Waterville Valley New Hampshire was a summer retreat for H.A. Rey and Margret Rey, creators of the Curious George series of children's books.

The Reys came to the Valley in the 1950s. At that time, they had just escaped the Holocaust in Paris. They spent over twenty summers there and wrote several Curious George stories while in Waterville Valley.

The Reys' cottage is an intellectual center, hosting book clubs, discussion groups, and the opportunity to watch a children's author at work. Hans was known for his chalk talks, and family nature walks, which often included conversations with imaginary people.

After the Reys died, the cottage was donated to the town of Waterville Valley. It is managed by the Margret and H.A. Rey Center, dedicated to providing educational and recreational programs for children and families, including nature walks, literary groups, writers' workshops, discussion clubs, a monthly lecture series, art shows, and activities for children. All activities are open to the public
